NOTES

With these performances we say goodbye to Sky Rink at 33rd Street. The facility that has been home since Ice Theatre's founding in 1984. Tremendous creativity and inspiration have taken place in this facility since it opened thirty years ago and tonight we celebrate the best of what has unfolded here.

Hundreds of thousands have learned to skate here. Great champions have trained at this facility. Young children have become men and women as they studied a sport developing as a performing art. Some of these skaters embrace skating as an expressive form and have committed themselves to developing their artistic and technical ability. We are proud to present the ITNY apprentices tonight, as well as our professional ensemble members.

The diversity of skating as dance is explored in our repertory by ice and theatrical choreographers. The theatre's mandate to draw artists from other disciplines to the ice has resulted in a rich variety of styles and moods for the ensemble to interpret. We have been enhanced and stimulated by our work with Laura Dean, David Dorfman, Donlin Foreman, Alberto Del Saz and Eva Carrozza, and thank them for the inspiration they bring to our slippery stage.

We are pleased to bring back to New York JP Martin and Christopher Nolan, two innovative Canadian ice artists. Mr. Martin with partner Mark Hird thrilled audiences across the US and Canada this season with Archetype which won them the Gold Medal at the 1994 Gay Games. Tonight, Mr. Martin skates the work with Chris Nolan and they premiere a new work as well.

Even as we pack to move to our wonderful new home... Premieres, premieres, premieres! That is what this room has inspired: A company dedicated to exploration, diversity and development. We look ahead with excitement and great anticipation of all the things to come!!

But tonight we skate to thank this room.
